First A-Powered Merchantman on Maiden Voyage

ABOARD NUCLEAR SHIP SAVANNAH (AP) — This 22,000-ton vessel — the world's first known atomic-powered merchant ship — shoves off today on a maiden voyage which signals the opening of a new era in commercial passenger and cargo hauling on the high seas.

The 2½-day voyage from historic Yorktown, Va., to Savannah, Ga., also will mark an American advance in the technological race with the Soviet Union. The Soviets have built a nuclear-powered icebreaker, but their plans to enter the nuclear-powered merchant ship field are believed to be still in the blueprint stage.

The Savannah is not expected to enter regular commercial service for about a year and a half. Meantime it will make demonstration trips and possibly take on some paying passengers for trips between American ports.

Atomic Energy Commission officials said the vessel is not expected to operate at a profit because it is the first ship of its kind "and costs of such a prototype are necessarily high."

The ship was named in honor of the 320-ton sailing vessel with auxiliary steam power that first crossed the Atlantic in 1819 using steam power part of the way.

Although the Savannah has undergone previous sea trials, the present trip marks her first excursion to a regular commercial port.

The ship has vast capabilities. With a single fueling of its mammoth atomic furnace, it could cruise for 3½ years, for a distance of 300,000 miles—much farther than the distance between the earth and the moon.

It is fueled by 17,000 pounds of uranium oxide, the power equivalent of 90,000 tons of fuel oil.

The ship's designed speed is 20 knots—about 23 statute miles per hour—but she already has done up to 24 knots in trials off Yorktown.

Representatives of the Atomic Energy Commission and the U.S. Maritime Administration of the Department of Commerce were all smiles before sailing time. The two government agencies jointly developed the Savannah, which is operated for the government by States Marine Lines.

"At least a dozen nations in Europe, including Russia, are planning to build nuclear-powered merchant vessels, and so is Japan," said an AEC man. "But we in the United States are out ahead of the pack."

The President and his film star in-law spent much of Sunday lounging by the pool of the actor's home, tossing around a football, and enjoying second helpings from the Lawfords' well-stocked larder.

The mob scene started when the President, apparently without prior warning to his security guards, emerged from Lawford's beachfront home and set out for the surf 100 yards across the sand.

For 15 minutes he swam vigorously. The crowd swam with him. The Secret Service, late in catching up, watched helplessly on the beach.

The guards didn't breathe easily until a hastily summoned life guard patrol boat cruised up near the swimming President.

As he emerged from the water, the mob scene was repeated. By this time there were 1,000 persons there.

Earlier the President attended Mass at the nearby Church of the Good Shepherd. Usher Larry McHugh said the President dropped a $100 bill in the collection box.

"Even in Beverly Hills," said McHugh, "this is noticed."

Once Around Roundtown

A PACKED HOUSE is expected tonight when a local delegation travels to the Maramor in Columbus to see Ted Lewis and observe "Circleville Night".

A rousing greeting is on tap for the noted Circleville bandsman... According to reports today, every seat in the house will be taken. And most of them will be filled with local wellwishers.

Heaps of honors will be showered on Ted... One of the first items of business today by the Pickaway County Commissioners was the conferring of an "Honorary Commissioner of Pickaway County" title on the favorite son.

He also was named an "Honorary Deputy Sheriff" by Sheriff Walton W. Spangler.

Accompanying the honors will be two neatly drawn certificates to make it official... The certificates were prepared by local artists.

Although plans for the "Circleville Night" observance were going well today, Ben Gordon, close friend of Ted and instrumental in forming the local delegation, suffered a bit of hard luck... Ben, it seems, had a little difficulty moving a refrigerator at his store today... The Result: A right hand with seven stitches in it and a heavy bandage to cover it.

DiSalle Asks for Answers To Rhodes Plan Questions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. Michael V. DiSalle said today a special legislative session could clear up questions about legality of the Rhodes plan for industrial expansion in Ohio.

The governor devoted most of an hour-long news conference to criticism of the plan by his Republican re-election opponent, State Auditor James A. Rhodes, and said Rhodes made erroneous statements in a recent Akron speech.

"I'm still willing to call a special session because I think it would clear the way for determination of the legality of the proposal," DiSalle told newsmen.

"Although the auditor says experts say that the plan is legal, I know of no reputable bond counsel who would agree."

The Democratic incumbent said he has an unofficial opinion to that effect but no official bond counsel statement. He did not elaborate.

DiSalle said he had received no word from Rhodes or GOP legislative leaders on his previous offer to call an extraordinary session.

The governor cited a news story published in Akron saying he ignored a suggestion by that city's Area Development Committee (ADC) to help attract industry to Ohio.

The news account quoted Rhodes as saying a Dec. 17, 1959, letter by ADC Executive Director George E. Wilson to DiSalle "was never answered."

The governor produced a copy of an answer dated Dec. 30, 1959, suggesting further study.

DiSalle earlier called for Rhodes to give the public answers to questions about his industrial expansion plan.

"Over what period of time does the GOP candidate's plan call for the creation of 200,000 new jobs? Does the plan call for sending the state deeper into debt?"

What kind of interest rates would be charged (for industrial loans)? Who stands the loss if they lend money to an industry and it fails?

Is there another state anywhere which has a plan that can accurately be called similar to this? Rhodes advocates creation of a state agency authorized to make loans to help finance new and expanding industry and create an estimated 200,000 new jobs through sale of self-liquidating revenue bonds. He said the plan incorporates the best features of similar plans in 30 states.

DiSalle, the Democratic incumbent, accused Rhodes of "avoiding the facts and being afraid to discuss his job — creation plan freely and openly."

In Lima Sunday, Rhodes fired a blistering attack against the Ohio Department of Industrial and Economic Development, an agency which would be abandoned under the Rhodes plan.

In a campaign speech, Rhodes claimed the DIED "has as its primary concern the building of a political machine."

He asserted that DiSalle has been "wasting 3½ valuable years and $1.5 million while other states have been developing practical industrial development programs."

2 Nations Fight Smallpox Scare

Canadian Boy Feared To Have Exposed Many

NEW YORK (AP)—Health officials of two nations worked against an awesome deadline today to find and vaccinate all persons who may have come in contact with a young Canadian smallpox victim.

The stricken boy, James William Orr, 14, flew here from Sao Paulo, Brazil, Aug. 11 on a plane with more than 80 other persons, including his parents and a brother and sister.

He passed through Idlewild Airport, traveled by cab to Grand Central Terminal and sat in the huge station's waiting room for 8½ hours before boarding a train for Toronto.

In Toronto the boy, described by his missionary father as feeling "under the weather," was taken to a doctor and eventually to a Canadian hospital.

Canadian authorities said the boy's illness was virtually certain to be smallpox, although confirming tests were still to be made. U.S. Public Health Service officials said there was no doubt.

It was the first confirmed case of smallpox in the United States since 1947, they said.

The development left New York City with the staggering task of running down all who may have come in contact with the boy here.

The city health department set up 12 vaccination centers in Manhattan and the Bronx, while issuing a call for all those who may have come in contact with the boy to step forward without delay.

Smallpox is a highly communicable disease that can be fatal if unchecked.

While the city vaccinated more than 300 persons at its centers Sunday, the U.S. Public Health Service gave vaccinations to more than 400 others at Idlewild Airport.

Centers in the city and at the airport were put on a round-the-clock schedule, while officials tried to hunt down the cab driver who transported the Orr family.

There are about 12,400 cabs in New York City with some 40,000 drivers.

Aerolineas Argentinas provided a passenger list of its Flight 322 from Brazil, and efforts were being made to track down each passenger. Some have scattered to far places.

Most difficult of all is the task of finding those who were in the Grand Central Terminal waiting room with the boy.

Telephone Call To Be Expensive

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A phone call 38-year-old Ralph Sargent of Dayton made Saturday night has turned out to be much more expensive than he had bargained for.

Sargent made his call from a phone booth in the main office building of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. After making the call he found the door to the booth was stuck.

Instead of calling for help, he broke down the door and fled, only to be picked up by police a short distance from the building.

Sargent has agreed to pay for damages to the booth.

U.S. Creates New Radiation Belt

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—A new and perhaps menacing radiation belt is in the atmosphere around the earth — put there, scientists say, by a United States high-altitude nuclear test blast July 9.

Little is known of the new belt except:

1. It could imperil astronauts in future space flights, and hence might cause the United States to delay its Project Mercury program.

2. It emits radio frequency signals and therefore may interfere with some radio astronomy.

The presence of the radiation belt, 600 miles and higher above the earth, was disclosed by Dr. James Warwick of the University of Colorado's high-altitude observatory, in a copyright article by science writer Victor Cohn of the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune.

Dr. Warwick's comments were substantiated by Dr. James A. Van Allen, who in 1958 discovered the principal radiation belt encircling the earth.

The Colorado scientist said the effect of the Pacific high-altitude test blast last month was to greatly intensify the so-called Van Allen radiation ring.

The new ring, he said, consists of high-energy H-bomb electrons, invisible atomic particles which follow the path of the earth's magnetic equator. The Minneapolis Tribune described the new radiation ring as probably a temporary layer under the inner part of the Van Allen belt.

"By temporary," said Dr. Warwick, "I mean possibly months or it may mean five years. We are maintaining constant observation, and I hope that by Sept. 1 we may have more information."

At Southampton, N.Y., where he is vacationing, Dr. Van Allen said the new belt has "increased the potential danger for manned space flights," but detailed exploration and scientific examination

17 Children, Sunday School Chief Drown

QUINCY, Fla. (AP)—"I didn't know what happened at first. I heard a couple of them yell out 'help me' and they all tried to grab hold of Mr. Bouie. I was by myself and when I came up out of the water I was by the boat and grabbed hold of it. I don't really remember much after that."

Those are the words of Jerome Maples, a small, shy 11-year-old who is the only survivor of a boating tragedy Saturday that took the lives of 17 children and their Sunday school superintendent, Joseph Bouie, 25.

Skin divers who recovered Bouie's body from Lake Talquin said one child was in his arms, another was on his back with arms clutched around his neck, a third held tightly around his waist and a fourth clung to one of his legs.

The drownings occurred during a church picnic outing attended by about 45 Negroes. Bouie was trying to give the children a ride in a 14-foot wooden boat with a 7½ horsepower engine. The stern of the boat dipped under the water and the occupants were tossed into the lake about 300 feet from shore.

Parents of 12 Seriously Hurt

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—An irate husband shot and wounded his wife today and then turned a revolver on himself, police report. The couple, in serious condition at Mercy Hospital, are the parents of 12 children.

Officers said 53-year-old Larry Baccus shot his wife, Mary, 47, in the face during an argument at their home. He then shot himself in the head.

A daughter, 14-year-old Ruby, said she witnessed the quarrel and the shooting. The girl said her parents argued over who was going downtown to pay a bill.

Mayor's Order Is Ignored

German Ire Is Aroused By Escapee's Fate

BERLIN (AP) — Angry West Berlin residents today ignored an order by West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt and resumed their stoning of Communist guards at the hated wall dividing the city.

Brandt had issued his order for a police crackdown on rioters after wild weekend demonstrations at the wall in which both Soviet and American servicemen were targets of rock-throwers.

East and West Berlin police also were involved in the melees. Brandt appealed for calm in a radio speech.

Thousands of angry West Berliners marched, shouted and threw stones at Soviets, Americans, the wall, East German border guards and their own police Sunday.

Huge slingshots were used to hurl tear gas grenades from the Communist side.

The rioting was to protest shooting by East Berlin border guards of a young refugee trying to escape Friday. He was left to die slowly on the East side of the wall while American troops and West police watched from the other side.

Maj. Gen. Albert Watson, the U.S. commandant, disclosed the Soviet command had refused an invitation to discuss the increase in tension with American, British and French commandants at U.S. headquarters. Watson had offered to lift a ban on the Soviet commandant visiting the U.S. sector.

Young West Berliners — best available estimates put their number at about 5,000—rioted into the early morning hours.

A young redhead, who was not identified, spoke through the loudspeaker of a West Berlin police truck. The truck was escorted by

Beauty Test Winner Shuns Royal Robes

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Tania Verstak, a reluctant Cinderella, is turning down a chance to wear the royal robes she won as Miss International Beauty.

She is returning to Australia to continue preparations for a career as a welfare worker—intent on helping people who, like herself, are refugees from communism.

She has declined offers of lucrative film contracts, and she does not want to tour the world as Miss International Beauty—an endeavor which earned her predecessor $25,000.

"I've got as much money as I want," she said. She won $10,000 with the title Saturday night. She said it will go into her father's building insulation business in Sydney.

Tania, 21, felt she wasn't pretty enough for the contest, which drew 50 girls from as many nations. The judges disagreed.

The hazel-eyed lovely fled from her birthplace, Tentsin, China, with her White Russian parents 10 years ago. The parents had escaped as children from Soviet communism.

She said she'll return home to fulfill her contract as Miss Australia. It runs until Christmas.

Miss Verstak, 21, intends to study English, Chinese and psychology to prepare for refugee work overseas. She already is fluent in English and Russian.

VA Studies Funds For GI Dividend

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration will take a close look at its funds to see whether a special GI insurance dividend can be declared to boost the nation's economy.

A spokesman for the VA said Sunday night that Administrator James S. Gleason Jr. had ordered the study, to be completed by mid-September.

On orders of President Kennedy the Veterans Administration paid a special dividend of $250 million to policy holders a year ago in a move to pump new funds into the then sagging economy.

Fighting Editor Is Honored Anew

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — New honor came today to an 85-year-old fighting California newspaperman—already twice honored for distinguished journalism since he challenged, last year, the activities of the John Birch Society, a militantly conservative group.

A committee, including noted newspapermen, now has named Santa Barbara publisher Thomas More Storke to be the 1962 recipient of an award given yearly by Colby College in memory of an alumnus, martyred editor Elijah Parish Lovejoy.

When shot to death in Alton, Ill. Nov. 7, 1837, Lovejoy was defending—a mob—his newspaper plant and his right to publish truth as he saw it. He has been hailed as "America's first martyr to the freedom of the press."

Owner-editor of the Santa Barbara News-Press, Storke is dean of California publishers, having given 61 of his 85 years to running his newspaper.

The Colby College announcement noted that Storke last November received the Lauterbach Award given each year to an American newspaperman for outstanding work in the field of civil liberties. He was cited for "pointing out the dangers to American freedom created by extremists of the radical right."

In May this year, the Colby announcement also noted, he received the Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing—for calling attention to what his newspaper said was a "campaign of hate and vilification" by the John Birch Society.

Storke's News-Press, a daily of more than 31,000 circulation, is the lineal descendant of the little Santa Barbara Daily Independent, a paper he bought in 1901 and other newspapers acquired later.

Still working, six days a week, he continues his long-held belief that "a newspaper will not be listened to or win respect if it pussyfoots in stating its editorial beliefs."

Concerned when the influence of the John Birch Society began to show itself in Santa Barbara, he took the position that any organization seeking to influence American opinion should be exposed to the judgment of the public.

After Birch Society leader Robert Welch assailed former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Storke's close friend, Chief Justice Earl Warren, Storke's newspaper attacked the society in feature articles and editorials.

"How," asked Storke, "can anyone follow a leader absurd enough to call former President Eisenhower 'a dedicated, conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy'?"

His newspaper contended Birch-er used Communist-style techniques to fight communism and character assassination.

DiSalle Asks for Answers To Rhodes Plan Questions

The city health department set up 12 vaccination centers in Manhattan and the Bronx, while issuing a call for all those who may have come in contact with the boy to step forward without delay.

Smallpox is a highly communicable disease that can be fatal if unchecked.

While the city vaccinated more than 300 persons at its centers Sunday, the U.S. Public Health Service gave vaccinations to more than 400 others at Idlewild Airport.

Centers in the city and at the airport were put on a round-the-clock schedule, while officials tried to hunt down the cab driver who transported the Orr family.

There are about 12,400 cabs in New York City with some 40,000 drivers.

Aerolineas Argentinas provided a passenger list of its Flight 322 from Brazil, and efforts were being made to track down each passenger. Some have scattered to far places.

Most difficult of all is the task of finding those who were in the Grand Central Terminal waiting room with the boy.

Telephone Call To Be Expensive

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A phone call 38-year-old Ralph Sargent of Dayton made Saturday night has turned out to be much more expensive than he had bargained for.

Sargent made his call from a phone booth in the main office building of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. After making the call he found the door to the booth was stuck.

Instead of calling for help, he broke down the door and fled, only to be picked up by police a short distance from the building.

Sargent has agreed to pay for damages to the booth.

U.S. Creates New Radiation Belt

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—A new belt in the atmosphere around the earth — put there, scientists say, by a United States high-altitude nuclear test blast July 9.

Little is known of the new belt except:

1. It could imperil astronauts in future space flights, and hence might cause the United States to delay its Project Mercury program.

2. It emits radio frequency signals and therefore may interfere with some radio astronomy.

The presence of the radiation belt, 600 miles and higher above the earth, was disclosed by Dr. James Warwick of the University of Colorado's high-altitude observatory, in a copyright article by science writer Victor Cohn of the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune.

Dr. Warwick's comments were substantiated by Dr. James A. Van Allen, who in 1958 discovered the principal radiation belt encircling the earth.

The Colorado scientist said the effect of the Pacific high-altitude test blast last month was to greatly intensify the so-called Van Allen radiation ring.

The new ring, he said, consists of high-energy H-bomb electrons, invisible atomic particles which follow the path of the earth's magnetic equator. The Minneapolis Tribune described the new radiation ring as probably a temporary layer under the inner part of the Van Allen belt.

"By temporary," said Dr. Warwick, "I mean possibly months or it may mean five years. We are maintaining constant observation, and I hope that by Sept. 1 we may have more information."

At Southampton, N.Y., where he is vacationing, Dr. Van Allen said the new belt has "increased the potential danger for manned space flights," but detailed exploration and scientific examination is needed before the effects on Project Mercury flights can be determined.

"I don't want to prejudice the data," Dr. Van Allen said, "but the radiation is a matter of concern and it is conceivable that Mercury flights might have to be delayed."

Van Allen said the situation conceivably could lead also to delay in similar flights by Russians.

Mayor's Order Is Ignored

German Ire Is Aroused By Escapee's Fate

BERLIN (AP) — Angry West Berlin residents today ignored an order by West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt and resumed their stoning of Communist guards at the hated wall dividing the city.

Brandt had issued his order for a police crackdown on rioters after wild weekend demonstrations at the wall in which both Soviet and American servicemen were targets of rock-throwers.

East and West Berlin police also were involved in the melees. Brandt appealed for calm in a radio speech.

Thousands of angry West Berliners marched, shouted and threw stones at Soviets, Americans, the wall, East German border guards and their own police Sunday.

Huge slingshots were used to hurl tear gas grenades from the Communist side.

The rioting was to protest shooting by East Berlin border guards of a young refugee trying to escape Friday. He was left to die slowly on the East side of the wall while American troops and West police watched from the other side.

Maj. Gen. Albert Watson, the U.S. commandant, disclosed the Soviet command had refused an invitation to discuss the increased tension with American, British and French commandants at U.S. headquarters. Watson had offered to lift a ban on the Soviet commandant visiting the U.S. sector.

Young West Berliners — best available estimates put their number at about 5,000 — rioted into the early morning hours.

A young redhead, who was not identified, spoke through the loudspeaker of a West Berlin police truck. The truck was escorted by

Beauty Test Winner Shuns Royal Robes

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Tania Verstat, a reluctant Cinderella, is turning down a chance to wear the royal robes she won as Miss International Beauty.

She is returning to Australia to continue preparations for a career as a welfare worker—intent on helping people who, like herself, are refugees from communism.

She has declined offers of lucrative film contracts, and she does not want to tour the world as Miss International Beauty—an endeavor which earned her predecessor $25,000.

"I've got as much money as I want," she said. She won $10,000 with the title Saturday night. She said it will go into her father's building insulation business in Sydney.

Tania, 21, felt she wasn't pretty enough for the contest, which drew 50 girls from as many nations. The judges disagreed.

The hazel-eyed lovely fled from her birthplace, Tientsin, China, with her White Russian parents 10 years ago. The parents had escaped as children from Soviet communism.

She said she'll return home to fulfill her contract as Miss Australia. It runs until Christmas.

Miss Verstat, 21, intends to study English, Chinese and psychology to prepare for refugee work overseas. She already is fluent in English and Russian.

VA Studies Funds For GI Dividend

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration will take a close look at its funds to see whether a special GI insurance dividend can be declared to boost the nation's economy.

A spokesman for the VA said Sunday night that Administrator James S. Gleason Jr. had ordered the study, to be completed by mid-September.

On orders of President Kennedy the Veterans Administration paid a special dividend of $230 million to policy holders a year ago in a move to pump new funds into the then sagging economy.

Fighting Editor Is Honored Anew

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — New honor came today to an 85-year-old fighting California newspaperman—already twice honored for distinguished journalism since he challenged, last year, the activities of the John Birch Society, a militantly conservative group.

A committee, including noted newspapermen, now has named Santa Barbara publisher Thomas More Storke to be the 1962 recipient of an award given yearly by Colby College in memory of an alumnus, martyred editor Elijah Parish Lovejoy.

When shot to death in Alton, Ill. Nov. 7, 1837, Lovejoy was defending—a mob—his newspaper plant and his right to publish truth as he saw it. He has been hailed as "America's first martyr to the freedom of the press."

Owner-editor of the Santa Barbara News-Press, Storke is dean of California publishers, having given 61 of his 85 years to running his newspaper.

The Colby College announcement noted that Storke last November received the Lauterbach Award given each year to an American newspaperman for outstanding work in the field of civil liberties. He was cited for "pointing out the dangers to American freedom created by extremists of the radical right."

In May this year, the Colby announcement also noted, he received the Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing—for calling attention to what his newspaper said was a "campaign of hate and vilification" by the John Birch Society.

Storke's News-Press, a daily of more than 31,000 circulation, is the lineal descendant of the little Santa Barbara Daily Independent, a paper he bought in 1901 and other newspapers acquired later.

Still working, six days a week, he continues his long-held belief that "a newspaper will not be listened to or win respect if it pussyfoots in stating its editorial beliefs."

Concerned when the influence of the John Birch Society began to show itself in Santa Barbara, he took the position that any organization seeking to influence American opinion should be exposed to the judgment of the public.

After Birch Society leader Robert Welch assailed former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Storke's close friend, Chief Justice Earl Warren, Storke's newspaper attacked the society in feature articles and editorials.

"How," asked Storke, "can anyone follow a leader absurd enough to call former President Eisenhower 'a dedicated, conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy'?"

His newspaper contended Birchers used Communist-style techniques to fight communism and character assassination."

about 500 demonstrators from West Berlin's City Hall down main street. Hundreds of cars followed, tooting their horns. Honking cars appeared near Checkpoint Charlie, at U.S. headquarters and at Bernauerstrasse—the border street where many refugees have escaped to the street, some to their deaths.

It was nearly midnight, and the young man asked the demonstrators to go home for the night. Some did. Others went back toward the border, shouting, "The wall must go."

There have been demonstrations in West Berlin every day since Friday, when police of the East German Communist regime shot an 18-year-old refugee as he was climbing the wall. He fell back on the Communist side, mortally wounded.

For almost an hour the boy lay. Many Berliners were indignant at the American forces in Berlin. Their major post on the wall, Checkpoint Charlie, is only 200 yards from the site of the incident. Many West Berliners felt the Americans should have given the wounded youth medical aid.

Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, the U.S. commandant in Berlin, protested to the Russians. He told the West Berliners, through an official spokesman, that the U.S. mission shared their sense of outrage and frustration.

Shotgun Blast Sends Man To Hospital

David Stevenson, 32, of 240 E. Union St., was rushed to Berger Hospital at 12:30 p. m. yesterday for treatment of a shotgun wound in the left leg.

Police said the wound was self-inflicted. Stevenson was found in an upstairs bedroom of his home.

The man's wife and two children were downstairs eating their noon meal when the shotgun blast was fired. His sister also with them.

A 12 gauge shotgun was found near the wounded man. Members of the Circleville Fire Department emergency crew were called to the scene. They in turn notified police.

ACCORDING to relatives, Stevenson had been depressed due to being unemployed. However, his wife said there had been no previous suicide threats. She said he had undergone extensive hospital treatment in the past.

Patrolman William Brungs said a mark was found on the east bedroom wall where Stevenson apparently placed the butt of the gun to fire it. The west side of the wall was damaged by the blast.

Fingerprints May Lead to Mail Bandits

BOSTON (AP)—The discovery of additional fingerprints was disclosed today by one of the chief investigators seeking the bandits who took part in the nation's biggest cash robbery in Plymouth.

William F. White, chief New England postal inspector, told newsmen the prints were found on road signs used by the robbers to detour traffic while they emptied a mail truck of $1,551,277.

The prints were sent to FBI headquarters in Washington. Investigators earlier found fingerprints on at least one of the automobiles used in the precision planned robbery on Route 3 last Tuesday night.

The money taken represented shipments from Cape Cod banks to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

The biggest previous cash haul in the nation's crime annals was the $1,219,000 Brink's robbery in January 1960, for which eight men were sentenced to life.

White said investigators are not looking for any specific suspect by name at this stage of the investigation.

"We just don't know, as yet," he said, "who actually was involved in the robbery."

Stock Market Heads Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—Aircraft and electronics issues led the stock market higher early this afternoon. There was a little more activity than on Friday.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks had gained .8 at 223.7 with industrials up 1.5, rails unchanged and utilities up .5.

Gains in the aerospace section reached 1 point in many cases but the remainder of the list showed mostly fractional advance.

The market leadership was the same as last week when the popular averages rose to their highest point since the week of the May slump. The Russian success with twin orbital shots has convinced many investors more money will be spent on the U.S. space program.

Kennedy Drug Bill OKd by Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved President Kennedy's proposed revision of the pending drug bill, saying the changes would provide safe and in some instances cheaper medicines for the public.

The committee said there was not a single dissenting vote at the closed meeting.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chief sponsor of the bill, released a statement after the vote declaring that the measure "should not only result in better, safer and more effective drugs, but in addition should provide physicians with honest information concerning their (the medicines) properties and prevent the dissemination of false and misleading information to doctors."

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, and Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Senate majority leader, said they expect the Senate will start debate on the still controversial measure immediately after disposing of farm aid legislation.

The Senate committee's approval came as a House committee opened hearings on another drug control bill, an omnibus administration measure to provide controls on the manufacturing, testing, packaging, labeling and marketing of drugs.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When in- trepid Eliot Ness and his "Un- touchables" shoot their way back on the nation's television screens this fall, we may have a difficult time recognizing our hero.

Over the summer, they've been busy humanizing Eliot, who, if you remember, was a hard-eyed, humorless zealot relentlessly pur- suing evil-doers of the 1930s, most- ly bad 'uns connected in some way with Frank Nitti.

According to authoritative re- ports, during the vacation period, Ness' long feud with Nitti quietly came to an end. In fact, it is probable that we won't ever see or hear again that big, burly gangster chieftain.

"In the new shows there proba- bly won't even be any one vil- lain," whispered an ABC stoolie who knows the inside picture. "They are going to start telling stories through Ness' eyes, from his viewpoint."

This is going to mean quite a few changes. For one thing, Ness, who apparently never had a home life but just lived in his office and existed on cardboard-flavored cof- fee and drugstore sandwiches is soon to acquire a wife. We will not see her, according to the plan, but Ness will occasionally take time off from tracking down wrong-doers to telephone home.

Most drastic of all, the changes mean that we'll see our Eliot as a living, breathing human with faults and imperfections instead of an epic figure of righteous vengeance.

In one forthcoming episode, he will be so frightened by an ex- plosion of a hand grenade that he'll suffer a case of psychoso- matic blindness — "Even though they didn't know what to call it in those days," amended our in- formant.

Another will be a heart-tugger, in which two little children truly believe that somebody shot Santa Claus.

Still another change — it is al- leged — will involve insertion of flashes of humor, a rare commod- ity in the "Untouchable" shows of the past three seasons.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Ei- senhower-Kennedy handling of the presidency—a policy of let's be nice and not get mad at anybody —has mixed blessings. President Kennedy has stuck with it except for his bout with Big Steel.

This policy may assure great personal popularity. But the popu- larity does not necessarily rub off on the party. And it's a policy which raises a natural question: Does it make for a great presi- dency?

President Eisenhower, for in- stance, had immense personal popularity. But a recent poll of 75 historians not only didn't put him among the great or near- great presidents but placed him away down among the average.

Eisenhower, after watching for 20 years the head-banging tactics of Presidents Roosevelt and Tru- man when they got angry, par- ticularly with Congress, took a directly opposite course.

Through two terms he sought to run the presidency with an air of great calm. He almost never deviated from this policy. With his political philosophy of calling no names, he was called none. By throwing no mud, he avoided getting splattered. He did nothing to spoil the image of himself and thus gave no one else a chance to.

This absence of domestic fric- tion no doubt was one of the great keys to his popularity. If he had been constitutionally permitted to run for a third term, and wanted to, he almost certainly would have been re-elected.

President Kennedy watched this Eisenhower technique for eight years from his seat in the Senate.

With the exception of Kennedy's blowup with the steel industry, he has followed this technique rather than the more direct, ag- gressive reactions of Roosevelt and Truman.

But while the voters could ap- prove Roosevelt, Truman and Ei- senhower—as their re-elections showed—they did not have the same feeling toward their parties.

In Roosevelt's case the voters, through his whole presidency, in each election gave his Democrats control of Congress while re- electing him three times.

It was mixed with Truman who, when he took office in 1945, in- herited a Democratic congress from Roosevelt. In the first elec- tion after 1946, the Democratic Congress was replaced by one run by Republicans.

In 1948 Truman was elected, along with a Democratic Con- gress. The voters gave him a Democratic Congress again in 1956.

In Eisenhower's first two years the record of his Republican Con- gress was unimpressive. The Democrats got control in the 1954 elections, and in the next two elections, even though Eisenhower was being re-elected.

Eisenhower retained tremen- dous popularity but it didn't help his party's congressional candi- dates.

The record of Kennedy's first Congress, run by his Democrats, is also unimpressive. In Novem- ber it faces its first election test. Still, Kennedy's popularity re- mains high.

The difference between great- ness and great popularity—in the eyes of historians—was shown in a recent poll of 75 historians taken by Arthur Schlesinger Sr. of Har- vard. His son, Arthur Jr., also a Harvard historian, is a Kennedy assistant.

In the New York Times Sunday magazine section the 75 ranked Roosevelt among the great presi- dents, along with Lincoln, Wash- ington, Wilson and Jefferson. They placed Roosevelt third be- hind Lincoln and Washington.

They put Truman in the near- great class; behind Jackson, Theodore Roosevelt and Polk but ahead of John Adams and Cleve- land.

The historians put Eisenhower away down on their list—11th among the 12 presidents listed as average, just ahead of Andrew Johnson. Next came the two they classed as failures: Grant and Harding.

Abby Says Mother-in-Law Problem Isn't Funny at All

Abigail Van Buren, this news- paper's "Dear Abby," doesn't think the mother-in-law problem is a laughing matter.

The popular columnist wittily explains why in an article entitled "After The Honeymoon" in the September issue of McCall's mag- azine.

The possessive, prying or over- helpful mother-in-law is "more wretched than wicked," Abby says, offering a typical telephone conversation with the mother-in- law speaking:

"Hello, Alice. How are you? You probably just got up from a nap, but poor Bill has to work all day. . . . 'Bill' looks terrible. I don't think he's getting enough rest. You really shouldn't wear him out the way you do. . . ."

"What are you planning for din- ner tonight? My, that sounds ex- pensive. . . ."

"How is Peter? (the teenage grandson). Is he going out tonight? . . . Where? . . . Does he have enough money? You'd better give him a little more. Is he using your car? Why not? . . .

"Have you paid your income tax? How much? Did you save anything? . . ."

"How much did you pay for that living-room chair you bought? . . ."

"Where were you last night? Home alone? Where was Bill? At the office again? Are you sure? . . ."

Abby suggests a change in the marriage ritual to improve the sit- uation. Instead of fathers giving their daughters away during the wedding ceremony, she urges the mother should be required to give her son away — "I mean really give him up to the girl he marries."

Were this done, Abby says, the son's "chances for a happy union would be greatly improved."

They put Truman in the near-great class: behind Jackson, Theodore Roosevelt and Polk but ahead of John Adams and Cleveland.

The historians put Eisenhower away down on their list—11th among the 12 presidents listed as average, just ahead of Andrew Johnson. Next came the two they classed as failures: Grant and Harding.

Abby Says Mother-in-Law Problem Isn't Funny at All

Abigail Van Buren, this newspaper's "Dear Abby," doesn't think the mother-in-law problem is a laughing matter.

The popular columnist wittily explains why in an article entitled "After The Honeymoon" in the September issue of McCall's magazine.

The possessive, prying or over-protective mother-in-law is "more wretched than wicked," Abby says, offering a typical telephone conversation with the mother-in-law speaking:

"Hello, Alice. How are you? You probably just got up from a nap, but poor Bill has to work all day. . . . Bill looks terrible. I don't think he's getting enough rest. You really shouldn't wear him out the way you do. . . ."

"What are you planning for dinner tonight? My, that sounds expensive. . . ."

"How is Peter? (the teenage grandson). Is he going out tonight? . . . Where? . . . Does he have enough money? You'd better give him a little more. Is he using your car? Why not? . . .

"Have you paid your income tax? How much? Did you save anything? . . ."

"How much did you pay for that living-room chair you bought? . . ."

"Where were you last night? Home alone? Where was Bill? At the office again? Are you sure? . . ."

Abby suggests a change in the marriage ritual to improve the situation. Instead of fathers giving their daughters away during the wedding ceremony, she urges the mother should be required to give her son away — "I mean really give him up to the girl he marries."

Were this done, Abby says, the son's "chances for a happy union would be greatly improved."

Hope for Bachelors

A few years ago someone produced statistics proving that married men live longer than bachelors. Besides producing one of the world's worst jokes ("It only seems longer"), the figures have made life almost unbearable for the single men.

In the company of his married friends, he has a gnawing feeling that they pity him, poor doomed creature, and that they probably doubt his sanity. After all, what sane person will voluntarily give up a couple of years of longevity?

Worse, the statistics panicked an uncounted number of happy bachelors into the ball-and-chain routine. It was a sellers' market for the girls for a while. A lot of gals who had resigned themselves to an old age filled with tabby cats and parakeets found themselves importuned to wedlock by formerly unassailable bachelors who thought 72 was a better checking-out age than 70.

Evidently the statisticians were ashamed of themselves, for they have produced some more data which will go a long way to relieve the single man's mind. A British psychiatrist has found that 18 per cent of married men become mentally unhinged. The rate for bachelors is only 6 per cent.

Figures like that should be good enough to reassure any guilt-ridden bachelor. Anyone can reasonably hope for sanity instead of a longer old age. And the information may help him to get out of some threatening situations. ("It isn't that I don't want to marry you, dear, but this is Mental Health Week").

For those who insist on looking at the dark side, there is another angle. The figures seem to show that you cannot live without marriage, but it will drive you insane. Or, as a bachelor might put it, you have to be crazy to get married in the first place.

A Little Moonlight

Many myths and old wives' tales had their genesis in fact — or, at least, in observed phenomena.

Take the term "moon madness," or lunacy (from lunar) — the idea that the moon drives humans out of their heads. It's not utter nonsense as the American Institute of Medical Climatology is learning.

At an institute meeting, Philadelphia Police Inspector Wolford Faust reported how he uses the phases of the moon in dealing with homicide. He has learned that whenever a full moon falls on a Friday night, "there is going to be the devil to pay."

First, more murders occur on Friday night than any other time. But even more occur on a Friday full moon night. Likewise, suicides, rapes and other crimes of violence occur during full moons. Philadelphia police statistics prove it.

Actually, say climatologists, the moon is an unimportant factor in itself. Human aberrations are caused by the moonlight's ionization of the air, putting an excess of negatively-charged particles into the atmosphere, they insist.

This being so, the next step is to mount counter-measures. Perhaps this can be done by thinking positively — in ions, that is.

Accommodations Needed

While Washington concerned itself with the Alliance for Progress and how to knit Latin America and North America into a cohesive unit, a group of travel officials from eight Central American nations and the United States attacked the roadblock of tedious red tape besetting tourists.

These officials, meeting in San Salvador, recommended:

Elimination of entry and exit visas for tourists, authorization for intrastate travelers to stay in a country up to 72 hours "with a minimum of formality," relaxation of customs procedures, establishment of 24-hour service for immigration, customs and health inspection at border points, and abolition of direct taxes on tourists.

All are very excellent recommendations. Next step is to get the governments involved to adopt them.

But these aren't really the major problems. Needed most of all is completion of a good, all-weather Inter-American highway and construction of a series of motels alongside it. When these are available, the pressure of North Americans on those Central American borders will be so great that the other changes will come about naturally.

What a good road and good accommodations would do to attract American tourists would startle even the lethargic Latins.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week reached its highest level since immediately after the May 28 sell-off. Volume was almost one-third higher than last week.

Only on Thursday, when profit taking set in, did the list fail to advance. Prices closed at the highest of the week for the third gain in the last four weeks.

Measured by The Associated Press 60-stock average, the advance of 5 points was the best since July 2-7, when the gain was 5.4 points. This average closed Friday at 222.9, the highest since 225.4 on June 1.

The Dow Jones industrial average hurdled a barrier on Tuesday—the psychological and technical wall created by the 600 level. Once past that point, "the magic wand of 600," as one broker called it, helped prices to move higher.

This average closed the week at 610.02, its highest since 611.05 on June 1. The gain for the week was 17.7 points. Wednesday's gain was the best for any day since July 2.

Also helping the market were President Kennedy's sizeup of the economy and the market on Monday night, a number of higher economic indicators for July; and the Senate's vote to limit debate on the administration's communications satellite bill.

Motors and aerospace issues (the aircrafts and electronics) were the week's leaders. They ignited the market during both Wednesday's and Friday's session.

Although the market had anticipated there would be no tax cut this year the Presidents report was considered reassuring and cleared the air.

Among the economic indicators pointing upward for July were: A record high in the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production, a second quarter increase in gross national product, higher cash dividend payments than a year earlier and higher new orders and sales by durable goods manufacturers.

Thursday the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board said the July improvement in business had continued in August and he saw no recession in the near future.

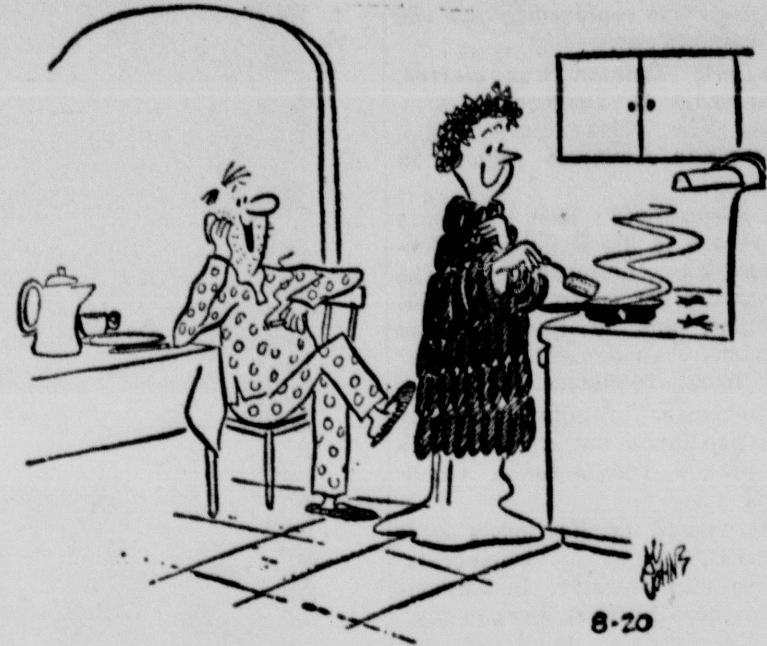

All these things helped restore some investor confidence. Wall Street felt. Trading responded by increasing to 18,808,440 for the week from 14,329,402 last week and compared with 18,024,090 in the like week a year ago. Wednesday's 4.88 million shares traded was the busiest day since July 12.

EMMETT KELLY recalls the most irritable elephant that ever hooked up with the Ringling Circus. This pachyderm was begging for peanuts before one matinee performance when a harmless flea settled on the tip of his trunk. "Hey," grumbled the elephant, "quit crowding, will ya?"

Ernest Gruening tells how one prominent Alaskan, Dr. Walter W. Council, once shot three bears with a single bullet. Word came to the Doctor that a whale had been stranded on a nearby beach. When he reached the scene, he spied a large brown bear feeding on the whale carcass. This provided an opportunity no true Alaskan could resist.

Dr. Council ran back to his cabin, returned with his rifle, took careful aim at the bear's head, and fired. When he came up to the dead bruin he found that two cubs had been feeding on the other side of their mother. The bullet that killed her passed through both of them also! (Don't feel too badly about these brownies. Mean ones have mangled many an unwary Alaskan citizen!)

Mrs. Howard was disconsolate when her beloved offspring brought home a report card showing nothing but "D's". Mr. Howard, however, always an optimist, consoled her with, "One thing, at least: it proves he's not cheating."

Inside You and Yours

Dear Doctor: Our 16-year-old son has bad acne. While relaxing, reading or watching TV, he unconsciously picks his face. Are we nagging too much by reminding him not to?

Mrs. L.C. (Calif.)

Ask your son; he knows. Soaking with warm, wet cotton instead may head off both physical and psychological scars.

Acne starts when the outer layer of skin grows across oil glands, stopping up pores. Oily secretions convert pores to whiteheads. Dirt darkens them into blackheads.

When bulging glands burst, irritating oil seeps out just below the surface. Now bulging cysts mushroom. Germs creep in and trigger infections that later leave scars.

The sooner the treatment, the better the cure!

Brisk—but light—scrubbing helps reopen clogged oil glands. Use a warm, soapy washcloth five minutes twice daily.

Grating soaps like Lava R may grind away pore-sealing skin. Ask your druggist about phisoflex R and other germ-killing soaps.

Certain chemicals cause acne. Beware of cobalt, bromine, iodine and vitamin B-12 in food supplements and cold and cough remedies. Check each label carefully.

Swim or hike on hot, sunny days. No sweaty tennis or badminton! New cysts boil as sweat spreads acne.

Nuts, chocolate, sharp cheese and iodine-rich sea foods may irritate oil glands. Avoid them. So many other foods have been blamed, you'd have to starve to be completely safe!

Give up a few at a time—bacon, fried foods, nuts, pies, pastries and rich desserts—and see which trigger new flare-ups.

Warm soaks help heal raw, red cysts. Your doctor may prescribe stronger medicines like giant vitamin A capsules or antibiotic germ-killers. Female hormones help when menstrual flow aggravates acne.

Don't forget to keep hands off! Squeezing or pinching swells cysts and injects scar-making germs.

Age of Secularism

By George Sokolsky

In a very large mail on the subject of the Supreme Court decision on prayers in schools, several arguments stand out clearly:

1. That I do not know anything about the subject;
2. That it is unfair to say that the Supreme Court is adopting secularism as a doctrine;
3. That it is anti-Semitic to disagree with the Court;
4. That Chief Justice Warren ought to be impeached.

In consideration of these criticisms, let us look at Mr. Justice Douglas's concurring decision. He said:

"The point for decision is whether the Government can constitutionally finance a religious exercise. Our system at the federal and state levels is presently honeycombed with such financing. Nevertheless, I think it is an unconstitutional undertaking whatever form it takes."

In a prolonged footnote on this subject, Mr. Justice Douglas quotes from Fellman's "The Limits of Freedom," with which I am not familiar, to provide evidence that "there are many 'aids' to religion in this country at all levels of government. To mention but a few at the federal level, one might begin by observing that the very First Congress which wrote the First Amendment provided for chaplains in both Houses and in the armed services." Etc. etc.

Justice Douglas takes the position that in New York State:

"The question presented by this case is therefore an extremely narrow one. It is whether New York oversteps the bounds when it finances a religious exercise."

In a word, from his standpoint what makes it wrong to pray in the schools is that the schools are supported by taxes. But so is the Supreme Court. So he adds:

"What New York does on the opening of its public schools is what we do when we open court. Our Marshal has from the beginning announced the convening of the Court and then added 'God save the United States and this honorable court.' That utterance is a supplication, a prayer in which we, the judges, are free to join, but which we need not recite any more than the students need recite the New York prayer."

"... It is said that the element of coercion is inherent in the giving of this prayer. If that is true here, it is also true of the prayer with which this Court is convened, and with those that open the Congress. Few adults, let alone children, would leave our courtroom or the Senate or the House while those prayers are being given. Every such audience is in a sense a 'captive audience.'"

Therefore he says:

"At the same time I cannot say that to authorize this prayer is to establish a religion in the strictly historic meaning of those words. A religion is not established in the usual sense merely by letting those who chose to do so say the prayer that the public school teacher leads. Yet once government finances a religious exercise it inserts a divisive influence into our communities."

I think that it can be said that Mr. Justice Douglas makes as good a case in favor of prayer in the schools as I have seen. However, he seems to be in difficulties because in the struggle between basic religious concepts and secularism, he is caught in an intellectual snare. For instance, such a matter as this bothers him:

"Some communities, including Washington, D. C., have a Christmas tree purchased with the taxpayers' money. The tree is sometimes decorated with the words 'Peace on earth to men of goodwill.'"

In a word, there being a conflict among Catholics, Protestants, and Jews as to the precise wording of the Hebrew, Aramaic, Greek, and Latin versions of the Bible there are conflicting translations in English. Therefore he falls back on Mr. Justice Rutledge's dissenting opinion in the Everson Case which is not concerned with abstract truth but with the cash register:

"Public money devoted to payment of religious costs, educational or other, brings the quest for more. It brings too the struggle of sect against sect for the larger share or for any..."

Therefore prayers to God are to be kept out of the public schools... To which, Mr. Justice Stewart replied:

"The Declaration of Independence ends with this sentence: 'And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.'"

TO WED CIA CHIEF—Mrs. Paul Pigott, widow of a Seattle, Wash., industrialist, will be married to John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, in Seattle Aug. 29. After a brief European honeymoon, they will reside in Washington.

Age of Secularism

By George Sokolsky

In a very large mail on the subject of the Supreme Court decision on prayers in schools, several arguments stand out clearly:

1. That I do not know anything about the subject;
2. That it is unfair to say that the Supreme Court is adopting secularism as a doctrine;
3. That it is anti-Semitic to disagree with the Court;
4. That Chief Justice Warren ought to be impeached.

In consideration of these criticisms, let us look at Mr. Justice Douglas's concurring decision. He said:

"The point for decision is whether the Government can constitutionally finance a religious exercise. Our system at the federal and state levels is presently honeycombed with such financing. Nevertheless, I think it is an unconstitutional undertaking whatever form it takes."

In a prolonged footnote on this subject, Mr. Justice Douglas quotes from Fellman's "The Limits of Freedom," with which I am not familiar, to provide evidence that "there are many 'aids' to religion in this country at all levels of government. To mention but a few at the federal level, one might begin by observing that the very First Congress which wrote the First Amendment provided for chaplains in both Houses and in the armed services." Etc. etc.

Justice Douglas takes the position that in New York State:

"The question presented by this case is therefore an extremely narrow one. It is whether New York oversteps the bounds when it finances a religious exercise."

In a word, from his standpoint what makes it wrong to pray in the schools is that the schools are supported by taxes. But so is the Supreme Court. So he adds:

"What New York does on the opening of its public schools is what we do when we open court. Our Marshal has from the beginning announced the convening of the Court and then added 'God save the United States and this honorable court.' That utterance is a supplication, a prayer in which we, the judges, are free to join, but which we need not recite any more than the students need recite the New York prayer."

...It is said that the element of coercion is inherent in the giving of this prayer. If that is true here, it is also true of the prayer with which this Court is convened, and with those that open the Congress. Few adults, let alone children, would leave our courtroom or the Senate or the House while those prayers are being given. Every such audience is in a sense a 'captive' audience."

Therefore he says:

"At the same time I cannot say that to authorize this prayer is to establish a religion in the strictly historic meaning of those words. A religion is not established in the usual sense merely by letting those who chose to do so say the prayer that the public school teacher leads. Yet once government finances a religious exercise it inserts a divisive influence into our communities."

I think that it can be said that Mr. Justice Douglas makes as good a case in favor of prayer in the schools as I have seen. However, he seems to be in difficulties because in the struggle between basic religious concepts and secularism, he is caught in an intellectual snare. For instance, such a matter as this bothers him:

"Some communities, including Washington, D. C., have a Christmas tree purchased with the taxpayers' money. The tree is sometimes decorated with the words 'Peace on earth to men of goodwill.'"

In a word, there being a conflict among Catholics, Protestants, and Jews as to the precise wording of the Hebrew, Aramaic, Greek, and Latin versions of the Bible there are conflicting translations in English. Therefore he falls back on Mr. Justice Rutledge's dissenting opinion in the Everson Case which is not concerned with abstract truth but with the cash register:

"Public money devoted to payment of religious costs, educational or other, brings the question of religious costs, education, and with those that open the Congress. Few adults, let alone children, would leave our courtroom or the Senate or the House while those prayers are being given. Every such audience is in a sense a 'captive' audience."

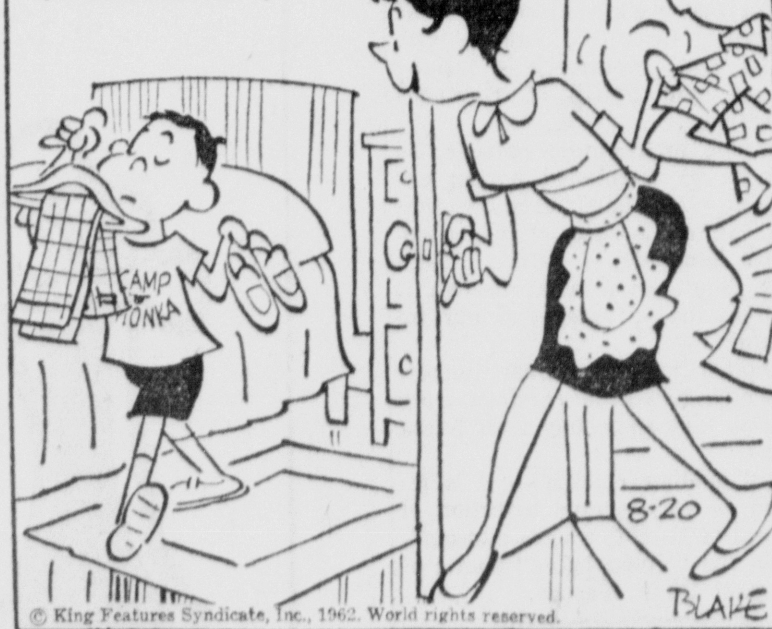

Therefore prayers to God are to be kept out of the public schools. . . . To which, Mr. Justice Stewart replied:

"The Declaration of Independence ends with this sentence: 'And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.'"

Uncle Sam Wanting To Know Activities Inside His Woods

The national forests are a federally-owned treasure.

By JAMES H. WINCHESTER
Central Press Association
Correspondent

WASHINGTON — There's more than trees in Uncle Sam's national forests.

Investigators from the government's General Accounting Office have just completed a survey of the use of national forest land and their report to Congress has left more than one legislator aghast at what they found. Included were a nudist colony; a house of prostitution; unauthorized motels, hotels, and recreation centers, and even entire towns.

In reply, embarrassed Forest Service officials contend that they haven't the manpower or money to strictly supervise the more than 160 million acres of federally-owned woods.

Most of the reported abuses occurred on tiny mining claims scattered throughout the disputed property. Mining claim procedures are designed to encourage prospecting in national forests by private interests.

Stores in Euclid Challenge Blue Law

CLEVELAND (AP) — It was pretty much business as usual Sunday in suburban Euclid where many stores operated in a challenge to the city's Sunday closing law.

The Bailey Co., first local department store to open on Sunday as a competitive move against discount houses, had sales "beyond our expectations," said Irvin J. Ware, president. He added: "Today proved the American public wants to shop on Sunday."

At Bailey's and other stores Euclid police were making purchases as evidence that Police Chief Frank W. Payne said would be turned over to City Prosecutor Robert L. Steele for possible filing of charges.

Oil and Water

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—Too much suntan lotion forced the closing of the swimming pool of the officers' club at Schilling Air Force base.

Officials said swimmers failed to take showers to remove lotion before entering the pool. Oil accumulated on the sides of the pool and it was temporarily closed for cleaning.

Under certain conditions, anyone can stake out a 20-acre claim almost anywhere in the federal forests. At least $100 in labor or improvements must be invested, the boundaries must be marked clearly and the plot must be recorded according to local and state laws.

In return, the claimant can mine the property for minerals. If an additional $500 in labor or improvements is made in any one year, full title to the 20 acres may be obtained for a price of $5 an acre, or $100 total.

However, over the years, without proper supervision, many of these claims have been converted to other uses. According to the investigators' report, two concrete buildings were erected on one claim near Globe, Ariz. One was used as a bar, the other as a house of prostitution. Both, says the government, have now been put out of business.

The nudist colony, also now reported closed, was alleged to have operated for several years, in a national forest near Boise, Idaho. In another instance, the investigators reported they found an entire town prospering in the Boise National Forest. It is located on a claim filed in 1928, has 28 families with a total population of nearly 400, and its buildings include a post office, school house, store and cafe as well as homes.

A prevalent abuse uncovered by the inspectors was the use of these federal lands by "squatters" for such things as summer homes, hunting and fishing lodges, restaurants, rock museums, real estate offices and farms, all without paying any rents.

In California alone, the GAO sleuths reported to Congress, they found a whopping 3,000 residences on these government properties. Fewer than three dozen of them were used to house mining personnel.

The General Accounting Office report says without comment: "Many mining claims are apparently being used for purposes not related to mining."

As a result of all this the U.S. Forest Service has been reprimanded for "lack of prompt and effective action against trespass." Now legislation to close existing loopholes in the tax law has been recommended.

Business Undisturbed by No-Quickie-Tax Cut Decision

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy's decision against a quickie tax cut caused only a ripple when dropped into the nation's business stream.

His action was somewhat of an anticlimax as businessmen generally had concluded he would not ask Congress now for a tax reduction to spur the economy. Most public reaction from the business community to the decision was favorable although there were expressions of opinion that Kennedy's address to the nation had political overtones.

Some new business statistics, which were important factors in making up the President's mind, were encouraging, and the stock market quickly posted some advances.

"The pace thus far this summer, while not as good as all of us would like, has still brought further gains," Kennedy said. "Economic indicators for July do not warrant the conclusion that we are entering a new recession."

He added that the stock market rests on a sounder basis since its steep slump in May and June, inflation "remains no longer a serious threat" and progress has been made in stemming the outflow of gold and dollars.

Kennedy left the door open for income tax relief if the economy should skid in the next few months. He said he would call Congress into special session if necessary.

However, his present intention is to stick by his earlier pledge to seek income tax revision, effective next Jan. 1.

He urged Congress to enact his economic program as currently the best way to help business. It includes a tax credit on expenditures for equipment, authorization for more spending on public works and new tariff-cutting authority.

On the heels of the President's speech, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges released $1.9 billion of frozen funds to speed up federal-state road building programs. The action doesn't give the state extra money but does make it available in the next few months—a period which may hold the answer to which way the economy is headed.

Favorable developments were the July increases in industrial production, housing starts and new orders to manufacturers of durable goods.

The Federal Reserve Board reported the production index representing the output of factories, mines and utilities—advanced one point to a record level of 119. Gains were noted in output of industrial commercial and farm machinery, freight and passenger equipment, and most durable and nondurable goods.

A 9 per cent increase in housing starts and a slight gain in requests for FHA mortgage insurance were announced by the Federal Housing Administration.

Durable goods orders in July were 5 per cent above the June level. However, a National Industrial Conference Board survey found appropriations by 12 per cent in the second quarter, which would reflect a slowdown in plant enlargement and modernization some months hence.

The AFL-CIO opened a drive for a 35-hour work week with no cut in pay as a means of reducing what it called the "intolerable" level of unemployment.

On another sector of the labor-business front, the immediate threat of a nationwide railroad strike was averted. A federal court refused to lift a temporary restraining order that barred the railroads from putting new work rules into effect. The railroads had intended to eliminate the jobs of 40,000 firemen on diesel trains. This brought a strike threat before the unions obtained the court order.

Automobile production dried up to a trickle of about 2,000 passenger cars during the week because of changeover to 1963 models.

The first 10 days of August was another good period for car sales. Dealers delivered 167,300 new American-made models, up 18 per cent from a year earlier but down 8 per cent from the early July rate.

Steel production held steady during the week at 1,578,000 tons, about 52.4 per cent of capacity. Orders were reported picking up but in a spotty pattern.

Stock sales for the week totaled 18,808,440 shares, up from the 14,329,402 of the previous week and the 18,024,090 of the comparable week last year. Bond sales amounted to $22,222,000 par value, an increase from the $19,241,000 of the previous week but below the $26,502,000 of the comparable 1961 week.

War I Fliers Renew Debate: Who Killed Legendary Ace?

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Who killed Baron Manfred von Richthofen, legendary ace of the German Imperial Air Force in World War I?

When is an ace not an ace? Bring together a group of fliers who once pitted their valor and skill against the Germans in aerial combat and those two crop up.

Like most historical disputes, the answers are a matter of opinion.

"No one will ever know for sure whether Richthofen was the victim of a young Canadian flier or whether he was brought down by ground fire," said Lt. Arthur Cunningham of New York City, who once flew a pursuit plane for the Lafayette Flying Corps.

Cunningham is one of the dwindling band of Americans who flew for France in 1914-18. They were here Sunday for a reunion.

Southerly winds brought some of the warmest temperatures of the summer to portions of Ohio Sunday.

Temperatures continued warm during the night, and by early today readings in the 70s were common. Cincinnati and Chesapeake had 72, while Columbus, Cleveland and Toledo had 69. Bellaire was warmest with 75.

Bellaire also reported a thunderstorm. Toledo had a light rain shower. So far this morning, no measurable precipitation has been reported.

The hot weather is forecast to continue over the state today and tonight with some widely scattered thundershowers.

Showers will be ending a d turning cooler in the north Tuesday, while scattered showers and continued warm temperatures are likely in the south.

Cunningham is one of the dwindling band of Americans who flew for France in 1914-18. They were here Sunday for a reunion.

Now a spry 67, Cunningham was just out of his teens when he joined the French Foreign Legion with the intention of eventually getting off the ground in one of the rickety wood-and-canvas planes of the Air Corps.

After America entered the war, Cunningham transferred to the famed 94th American "Hat in the Ring" Squadron, later commanded by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

Like most American fliers, Cunningham favors the officially recognized claim that Capt. Roy Brown, a Canadian flying with the Royal Air Force, brought Richthofen down with a burst from his machine guns.

But even as Brown was firing on the tail of the German ace, four Australian machine gunners and one rifleman on the ground also were pouring hot lead at the red Fokker tri-plane.

It spun into the ground, and the career of the No. 1 ace of the war came to an abrupt end.

By the accepted standard, five kills made a flier an ace. Richthofen had 80 officially confirmed victories to his credit before he crashed.

But that claim in itself is disputed by some who fought for the Allied cause. Chief reason for the dispute lies in the method of confirming kills officially, Cunningham pointed out.

Texas, Ohio Arrests Tied To Bogus Bills

PECOS, Tex. (AP) — Secret Service agents seized $118,240 in bogus bills Sunday and jailed a third suspect in operations attributed to a counterfeiting ring in the South.

Officers said boxes crammed with the fake money were hidden in the car of Joseph Stripland Allan Jr., 42, a Miami printer nabbed at Midland, Tex.

Federal agents and police made two other arrests Saturday in Dayton, Ohio. Authorities there said the two prisoners, L. S. Ellison and William Hyden Langdon of Hamilton, Ohio, admitted passing bills in several Ohio cities.

Allan told officers he had not passed any. Midland Police Chief Harold Wallace said Allan complained he was due $180,000 in counterfeit currency but was short — changed by his confederates.

U.S. Commissioner R. L. Tole set bond at $20,000 on charges of possessing counterfeit money and conspiring to defraud the government.

In Dayton, Ellison and Langdon were held under $2,000 bonds on charges of possessing and passing counterfeit bills. Secret Service Agent Gerard McCann said in Cincinnati the two, found carrying about $12,000 in bogus $10 and $20 notes, were members of a gang with a printing plant and headquarters somewhere in the south.

Agents said they trailed Allan several days en route from Miami across Louisiana to Abilene, Tex., and to Midland, his former home.

New Jersey Hoagies For Good Party Fare

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

When you order a Hoagie in most parts of the country, you probably get a sandwich made from a mammoth crusty roll and an Italian-style assortment of cold meats, cheese, fish, olives and salad vegetables.

But not in New Jersey. On a recent drive through that state's countryside, we were attracted by an enormous sign, HOAGIES, at a roadside restaurant. We were also lured by the group of people relaxing around outdoor tables and relishing giant sandwiches.

So Hoagies we ordered. Up came the usual large rolls, but not the expected filling. Instead there were tender slices of beef smothered in barbecue sauce.

The restaurant owner's wife waited on us. When we commented that the sandwiches were misnamed, she rose to their defense.

"You're talking about Heroes and Submarines," she said. "around here Hoagies are made with steak and sauce. The teenagers started the combination, and they were our first customers. Now their parents come, too."

Whatever its name, this sandwich is great party fare. So simple to prepare at home! Broiled flank steak may be used for the meat and this sweet and slightly spicy sauce may be put together in about five minutes. For a teenage party menu, you might like to add a finger food salad, fresh fruit and cookies, and a bowl of the new dry-toasted peanuts for nibbling.

NEW JERSEY HOAGIES

- 1 can (15½ ounces) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms (tomato base)
 - 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
 - 3 tablespoons lemon juice
 - ¼ cup minced onion
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
 - ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Broiled flank steak
Large crusty rolls
Lots of paper napkins
- In a small saucepan mix together the spaghetti sauce, sugar, lemon juice, onion, salt, mustard and Worcestershire. Bring to a boil over moderate heat; reduce heat and cook gently about 5 minutes. Makes 1½ cups sauce. Slice the steak thin across the grain and sandwich meat and some of the hot sauce into the rolls as served. Serve with paper napkins.

You can broil orange halves just as you do grapefruit halves. Nice to serve with ham or poultry.

Chic New Knitwear Styles

WOOL KNIT DRESS — Banding at neck, front closing, cuffs and pockets distinguishes this blue-gray tone dress.

By SUSAN BARDEN

Ingenious textures, beautiful colors and subtle silhouettes mark the fall and winter collection of couture knitwear from Tricosa of Paris.

Dresses, suits and ensembles appear in lovely monotone shades or combine colors and fabric with true French designing skill and workmanship.

Silhouettes flatteringly mold the figure or are nipped in at the waistline. Fitted bodices afford contrast to full skirts, achieved by gores, hidden pleats or flares. While some outfits have slim skirts, others carry new fullness.

Overblouses are sleeveless or have mere suggestions of sleeves and many affect high jewel necklines. They are teamed with matching skirts to make an outfit.

For cover-up, there are jackets in the same color or in a lighter shade.

The three-piece costumes and the dresses with their own jackets were designed to wear around the clock. They can go with great aplomb right from business office to cocktails and dinner.

Dear Abby: He's Lacking Something

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband does not drink, but every time we go out in public no one will believe he is sober from the way he acts. Last Saturday night we went to a night club with friends. My husband weighs 220 and is only 5 ft. 7. He spotted the daughter of a friend of ours at another table, so he went over and asked her to teach him how to Twist. The manager came out on the floor and told them to please sit down as they were creating a disturbance. (You should have seen them!) Then he went up to the girl who sings in the band, handed her a ballpoint pen and asked her to autograph his chest. He unbuttoned his shirt and she did. Everyone laughed but I didn't see anything funny about it. He's always doing things like that. When I complain, he says I have no sense of humor. Is he right or am I?

WORSE HALF

DEAR WORSE: Your husband must feel unloved and unappreciated at home or he wouldn't try so hard for laughs and applause from the general public. Build his ego a little and lessen his need to show off for strangers.

DEAR ABBY: How old do you have to be before you can go to the movies with a boy if your mother says yes but your father won't let you?

ALMOST 12

DEAR ALMOST: You have to be whatever age you reach when your mother and father both say yes.

DEAR ABBY: My family is very "profession - conscious." They don't care what a man is like as long as he's a doctor. I started dating an intern who turned out to be a Jekyll and Hyde type. In the company of others he is perfection itself, but when we are alone he is aggressive and brutish. My parents refuse to believe anything bad about him. My brother-in-law with this fellow and says I am childish and old-maidish about his friend's advances to me. (This is a loving brother?) I am 23 and don't want to be shopworn before I marry. When I told my family why I wasn't going out with this animal again, my father laughed and said, "He is only a man," and my mother said it is time I was married. Am I wrong?

SAVING MYSELF

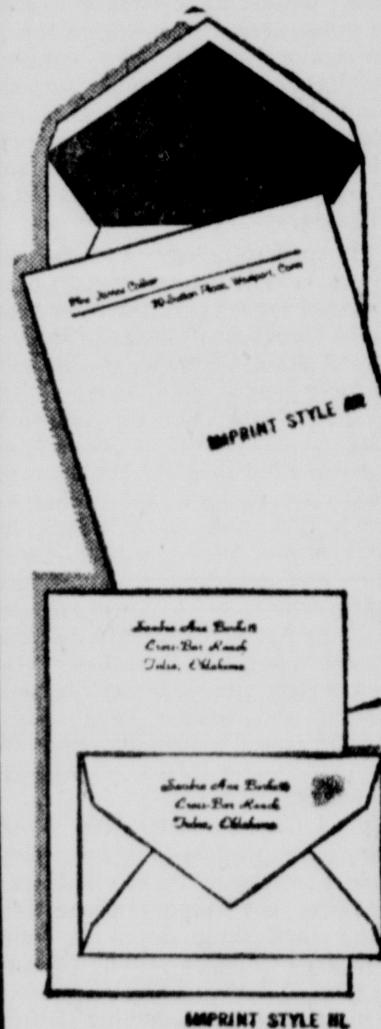

DEAR SAVING: Keep saving yourself. You will find dishonorable men in honorable professions. Select a man for what he IS, not what he does.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Los Angeles' Speed, Power Defeat Redlegs

Dodgers Remain Atop NL Standings with Ninth Inning Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Speed, power and pitching have kept the Los Angeles Dodgers on top of the National League standings.

These three important factors stood out like the Empire State Building Sunday as the Dodgers came from behind with a five-run explosion in the ninth inning to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 5-1 and stretch their first-place lead over San Francisco to 3 1/2 games.

The Giants, only a game and a half behind last Thursday, were beaten 13-8 by Milwaukee for their fourth loss in the last five games. St. Louis inflicted the 10th straight loss upon the New York Mets, 10-5 and Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 3-2. The Chicago Cubs shaded Houston 4-3.

The New York Yankees pounded Kansas City pitching for 20 hits and a 21-7 triumph to maintain their 4 1/2 game American League bulge over Los Angeles, a 5-2 victor over Washington. Minnesota swept a doubleheader from Boston 4-2 and 7-4 and Baltimore nipped Cleveland 6-5. The Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers split. The White Sox won the first game 11-5 and the Tigers took the second 8-3.

Held to five hits through eight innings by Joey Jay, the Dodgers chased the Reds' right-hander in the ninth and continued their assault on southpaw Jim Henry to score five hits on two home runs, two bunt singles, a walk and a sacrifice.

Frank Howard opened with a game-tying home run, his 21st of the season. John Roseboro walked. Don Drysdale sacrificed. Maury Wills beat out a bunt single. Exit Jay, enter Henry. Jim Gilliam beat out a bunt single, scoring Roseboro to put the Dodgers in front 2-1. Willie Davis hit a three-run homer, his 17th of the year, to make it 5-1.

Henry Aaron smashed his 32nd and 33rd home runs in the Braves' triumph over the Giants. The slugging outfielder, in boosting his average to .342, third highest in the league, ran his hitting streak through 19 consecutive games, longest in the majors this season. Willie McCovey had two homers for the Giants, one off Claude Raymond, whose strong relief pitching through the final three innings sealed Tony Cloninger's fifth triumph in seven decisions.

Rookie shortstop Dal Maxvill drove in three runs with his first major league home run and Ken Boyer had a double, two singles and two walks in the Cards' third straight victory over the Mets. Relief artist Lindy McDaniel, in his first start, went eight innings for his third triumph in 10 decisions.

Reuben Amaro's run-scoring single in the ninth snapped a 2-2 tie between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, giving the Phils' Chris Short his seventh victory against as many defeats. Elroy Face, in relief, was tagged with the loss, his fourth in 12 decisions.

The Cubs regained eighth place by belting the Colts, behind Bob Anderson's tight relief pitching and hefty hitting by George Altman. Anderson replaced Bob Buhl in the eighth with two runs in, Colts on first and third and one out and slammed the door. Altman collected four of the Cubs' ten hits and batted in two runs.

Columbus Jets Sweep Twin Bill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The automatic strike that wasn't may be the key to a playoff spot for the Columbus Jets.

The Jets were locked in a doubleheader struggle with fourth-place Buffalo Sunday that had important bearing on the fourth and last International League playoff position.

Buffalo's Joel Gibson ran the count to 3-0 on Jets catcher Orlando McFarlane. He delivered the "automatic strike."

McFarlane spanked it for a two-run double and the Jets went on to a 5-3 victory behind Bob (Riverboat) Smith.

Then Columbus captured the nightcap 8-6 for a sweep that pushed them into fourth and tumbled Buffalo all the way to sixth.

Atlanta took a doubleheader from Syracuse, 11-9 and 4-3. Jacksonville took the opener of a doubleheader with Rochester 19-8 and dropped the nightcap 3-2, and Richmond downed Toronto 7-4.

Riverboat Smith (9-6) had a two-hit shutout going into the eighth, but the Bisons shoved over two runs in that inning and John Herrnstein's 15th homer in the ninth added another.

Buffalo chased Vinegar Bend Mizell, pitching his first minor league game since 1951, in the third inning. Reliever Ron Blackburn (9-6) stopped the uprising and got the victory, although he needed ninth inning help.

Larry Elliot hammered a three-run homer for the Jets.

Bobby-Soxers Bust Records In Women's AAU Swim Tests

CHICAGO (AP)—Seldom has the resurgence of athletic youth been so underlined than by the complete stranglehold clamped on the National Senior Women's AAU Swimming Championships by a brigade of bobby-soxers.

A pair of 16-year-olds from Los Angeles, Carolyn House and Sharon Finneran, and 15-year-old Donna DeVarona of Santa Clara, Calif., led the record-busting parade in the 4-day meet which ended Sunday in the Portage Park 50-meter Olympic pool.

This trio, plus a group just as young that either won events or were pressing for first all the time, can make Uncle Sam rub his hands in glee at the women's

Lowly Indians Creeping Up On 9th Place

CLEVELAND (AP)—Don't look now, but the Cleveland Indians are creeping up steadily on ninth place in the American League. If they're not more careful they could make it by Labor Day.

Idle today after a 6-5 loss in Baltimore, the Indians go to Detroit for a three-game series opening Tuesday night.

After Sunday's action the Indians had dropped 1 1/2 games behind the sixth-place Orioles and were only 2 1/2 games ahead of ninth-place Kansas City. Boston, against whom the Indians open a four-game series here Friday night, is in eighth place, a half game behind Cleveland.

The Indians had a 4-2 lead for Barry Latman going into the sixth inning Sunday, but a single by Russ Snyder and a homer by Whitey Herzog tied it. The Orioles continued the rally with singles by Jim Gentile and Boog Powell. An intentional walk loaded the bases with two out.

At this point shortstop Woodie Held muffed an easy grounder by Jackie Brandt and two unearned runs scored. That put the Orioles ahead 6-4, and the best the Indians could do afterward was a ninth-inning run on a triple by Gene Green following a walk.

Mickey Wright Cops 6th Crown

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Mickey Wright won her sixth championship on the current Ladies Professional Golf Association tour Sunday, taking top money in the Albuquerque Swing Parade Golf Tournament.

The $1,000 first place money brought her winnings up to $12,928 for the year.

The hard-hitting Miss Wright had a 38 on the front nine Sunday, then settled down and collected 11 pars and two birdies the rest of the way to post a one-over-par 73 and a winning 219 total for the 54 holes.

Kathy Whitworth, a home-state product from Jal, N.M., also fired a 73 to take second place with a 224 total. Mary Mills, a newcomer to the lady pro ranks, played the best round of the day with par 72 and took fourth place with a 227.

2 Softball Kings Retain Crowns

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—Two defending champions retained their crowns and a third changed places with the 1961 runnerup as the Ohio amateur slow-pitch softball tournament wound up here Sunday.

Dayton National Cash Register thumped Willard Donnelly's 20-2 to retain the industrial division crown, and Hamilton Wilsman's Trucking defeated London Farmer Dan's 10-4 to repeat as the open division champion.

The switch was in the women's division when Middletown Monroe Merchants, last year's runnerup, downed defending champion Perryburg Zee's Nightclub 11-1.

Thirty-two teams played 52 games in the tournament which started Friday night.

Sanders Pockets Purse In St. Paul Tourney

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., fired a 7-under-par 65 Sunday to win the $4,300 first prize in the St. Paul Open.

Sanders' round gave him a 19-under-par 269 for the 72-hole tournament and a three stroke margin over Dave Hill of Jacksonville, Mich. It was the second tournament victory of the year for Sanders.

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—One of the world's noisiest sports spectacles went into high gear today as championship firing began in the 63rd Grand American Trapshoot.

Nearly 700 shotgun-toting marksmen—and women—blasted off today for a varied assortment of championships. The program calls for 200 targets at 16 yards in which husband-wife, parent-child, brother-brother and sister-sister titles will be decided.

Also veterans' championships for men over 70 and women over 50 will be up for grabs on the first 100 targets.

A special feature sends the state champions against each other. The titles for men, women and junior state titleholders will be decided in the 100-target, 16-yard contest.

The highlight of the week comes Friday with the Grand American Handicap where the winner probably will pick up $5,000 to $6,000 for his efforts.

In the warm-up contests over the weekend, Dan Orlich of Reno, Nev., a former Green Bay Packer football star, set himself up as one of the men to beat.

Orlich shattered 100 straight Saturday to tie with 11 others for one title—winning it Sunday in a shootout. Then the big marksman came right back to break 199 of 200 to tie for the Dayton Homecoming and won it outright in a shootout.

2 Ohio Weight Lifters Collect Championships

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — Ohioans won two of six individual classes and the team title Sunday in the Tri-State Odd Life Championship matches here.

Mike McGonagle of Newark topped weight lifters in the 132-pound class with a total lift of 490 pounds in the three lifts. Jerry Werling of Dayton won the 165-pound division with a total of 840 pounds.

Dawes Repeat Winner in Shoe Pitching

Kenny Dawes successfully defended his Class A championship crown yesterday in the third annual Ringer Roundup sponsored by the Pickaway County Horseshoe Club at the Fairgrounds courts.

In winning the crown for the second consecutive year, Dawes defeated such horseshoe flinging notables as Bill Sollars of Waynesville and Clark Johnson from Lyndon.

Johnson had thrown a qualifying score of 260, best in the pre-final rounds, J. D. Rhymer of Stoutsville won the fourth place trophy. Rhymer is a member of the local club.

Paul Rose copped the Class B event, edging Chet Peters of Ashville. Third place trophy winner was J. DeWeese and Fred Kiger placed fourth.

THERE were a total of 20 trophies given this year — four in each of the five classes. Final matches started at 9 a. m. Saturday and the championship was decided late yesterday.

Howard, big man of Dodgers

With his wife

When he signed in 1958

'BIG' MAN IN DODGER DOINGS—One of the highest-priced bonus boys in baseball history, Frank Howard of the Dodgers is beginning to make that $108,000 in green stuff paid him in 1958 look well spent. The BIG man, he's 6'7" tall and won his first game as a basketball star at Ohio State, just about annihilated the Giants in that recent series by driving in 12 runs in three games. He's upped his average to .318 and during a recent stretch of 37 games banged out 15 homers. In his first season, with Green Bay in 1958, Howard hit 37 homers and had a .333 batting mark. It Appears Paul Brown Glad To Have Jim Ninowski Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Where did Paul Brown get the title, "The Master"?

It couldn't have been from trading Jim Ninowski to the Detroit Lions after the 1959 season, that's for sure.

The Cleveland coach might be the first to admit it today after Ninowski led the Browns to their second exhibition triumph, a rousing 33-10 lacing of Pittsburgh Saturday night in the nightcap of pro football's first doubleheader before a whopping crowd of 77,683.

Brown had Ninowski sitting on the bench understudying Milt Plum, before letting him go to Detroit. And all the time, during and since, Cleveland never won a National Football League Eastern Conference title as it had been favored to do during each of four seasons.

The situation appears to have changed this year with Ninowski, who traded jobs and clubs with Plum, at the helm. Whether Detroit feels the same way remains in a 35-24 victory in the first game of the doubleheader. Earl Morrall finished up for the Lions, throwing for the clinching touchdowns.

The "Pamhagen Express" creeps along at 40 miles an hour.

'Toonerville Trolley' Railroad To Reach End of Line in 1969

By J. H. HENLIN
Central Press Association
Correspondent

VIENNA, Austria — It must be admitted that the trains that run from Pamhagen, on the Austro-Hungarian border, to Parndorf in Austria are in many respects no longer the best in the world. In fact, it is unlikely that they ever were.

The railroad is a privately-owned concession operated by Hungarian personnel who cross over daily from the Communist satellite. They are neatly dressed Magyars, probably chosen for their tact, who refuse to admit that such a thing as the Iron Curtain exists.

Not long ago the engineer was so unaware of the barbed wire, mines and border soldiers, in fact, that he forgot to stop at the border at all.

That morning he was operating one of these relics from another age and he went right on into Pamhagen with several screaming border soldiers clinging to the open-gangway connections.

The soldiers, to see that no Hungarian refugees were dead-heading the trip, posed an embarrassing situation for the Austrian customs officials.

It was decided to disarm the reluctant invaders and return them on foot to Hungary minus their carbines. Meanwhile, the old train sedately chuffed off to Parndorf.

Except for a few days during the Hungarian revolt when Soviet tanks were plowing up farms in the area this railroad has ignored history. It is one of the few remaining symbols of a vanished age and way of life that disappeared with the death of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy at the close of World War I.

The Austrians, no doubt, could put an end to it under some guise or other. However, no one wants to see the trains cross into Hungary for the last time.

"The crews are so charming", an Austrian said. "Communism... what do men like these care about Communism?"

The first "Pamhagen Express" began to roll back in 1879 and the trains pre-date the now non-existent Orient Express by three years. It is part of what is called the Raab-Oedenburg-Ebenfurter Railroad by Austrians, most of which is within Hungary.

Even though no Hungarian passengers are allowed to cross at this point today, during the days of the monarchy Europeans were not troubled by visas and passports.

The engineers don't worry too much about speed restrictions and timekeeping. If they approach a busy highway, they may slow down or even stop. The slow, leisurely pace of the train gives a striking sense of security even if the rails make the cars rock a bit.

It may be somewhat outdated when compared to Austria's sleek state railroad system, but some of the old cars still give one a glimpse of the brass, plush and other Hapsburgian finery which went with the monarchy.

The Pamhagen - Parndorf run is across some of Western Europe's loneliest and most sparsely populated land. This is primarily along the eastern shore of the Neusiedler-See, a lake shared by Austria and Hungary. It sometimes has water and it sometimes doesn't. When it does, the Hungarians have the irritating habit of draining much of it away.

In the last few years the Austrians have been developing the lake, terming it the "Viennese Riviera." As a tourist center it has been a success, but visitors come by automobile or by a direct Vienna-Neusiedler bus.

This doesn't bother the "Pamhagen Express" one bit. It has defied history for over 80 years and its cars are usually overly crowded with peasants, goats, chickens, dogs and cats. It is disinterested in tourists.

One sad note: the railroad's concession runs out on Oct. 28, 1969.

Locher Out As Cuyahoga Dems Parley

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cuyahoga County Democratic organization's scanning committee meets this afternoon to look over the party candidates for mayor, but Mayor Ralph S. Locher won't be among those scanned.

Locher, who moved up to the mayor's job from law director when Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze went to Washington as secretary of health, education and welfare, declared:

"I shall not appear today before the Democratic Party scanning committee. This would be a vain act on my part, since it is unmistakably clear that the political cards have been stacked against me within the Democratic organization by certain factions."

Locher's statement went on to say that "if the courts rule that there shall be a partisan primary for mayor, I will file as a Democrat, will run as a Democrat and win as a Democrat."

Ohio Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy will appear before the scanning committee. So will John T. Corrigan, Cuyahoga County prosecutor, although Corrigan is critical of the procedure and has indicated he might not go along with the scanning committee selection.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Plans were made during Bowling Green's centennial to arrest some visiting railroad men on a charge of not having beards as ordered by the town for the celebration.

But the railroaders pulled a surprise of their own. They grew beards in advance of their arrival. They were arrested anyway — on a charge of "general principles for fouling up a good publicity stunt."

Cincy Opposes Water District

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — The latest development in the water war between Cincinnati and Southern Butler County cities is a formal protest against establishing a Butler County water conservancy district.

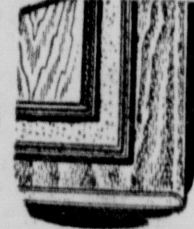

Cincinnati officials filed the protest Saturday in Common Pleas Court, contending the district's purpose was to prevent Cincinnati from taking water from a well field along the great Miami River.

Cincinnati officials have disagreed sharply with Hamilton and Fairfield officials whether a Cincinnati pumping station near Ross would damage water tables in the area.
